By order of the state committee,
H. C. Lindsay, Chairman.

The Spanish inquisitors should have known of that "water cure." It would have added very much to the pleasure they had with fellows who were placed on the rack. It had been supposed that the invention of new methods of torture had passed with the Indians, cannibals and the barbarians. Secretary Root is to be commended in his efforts to make it unpopular as one of the achievments of the American soldier and the school civilized by civilized methods it is certain that the practice of barbarisms will not have the desired results.

In Grand Island it is the custom to have the applicant for a saloon license sign his own published notice. It may be the proper caper, as anything done in G and Island should be, but it reads somewhat presumptuous for a saloon man to sign a notice stating that an application has been filed with the mayor and city council and "If there is no objection, remonstrance or protest filed within two weeks the said license shall be granted." It would seem that the mayor and city council would refuse to be dictated to in that open manner. In some towns and cities it is known that the saloon men have considerable to say as to how business of the city shall be conducted by the officers, but there are few officials who care to have it whispered out loud that they are subject to such domination.

No doubt remains but that Governor Savage proposes to secure that republican nomination by fair means or foul, if he can develop the necessary strength or secure the needed influence. It appears from all accounts that he is growing desperate over the situation and will not hesitate to use his official position to force support or punish those who refuse to swing into line for his boom. He may thus secure the co-operation of a number of the leaders but there is little doubt that the matter has gone beyond the control of the leaders tious pardon dispenser. The rank and from Mexico. file of the party is thoroughly aroused and it is anticipated that few counties of the state will send delegates who are not instructed to support, possibly a isting vacancies. home man first, but anyone else rather than Savage. His excellency is now attempting another of his popular dodges taking steps to extend the curfew law for the government after the war at by posing as anti-railroad, but he is not to cities and towns along all railroads Fort Sill, and later went into the bankhaving a large amount of success at in the United States. overcoming the unpopularity that he occasioned by pardoning Bartley, and he unquestionably has a difficult road to hoe in bringing things his way.

out for a year recently and will receive $250 in money, his board and washing, the keep of his buggy horse, with a week off when the corn is "laid by" in June, and another vacation when husking is finished. Counting the ordinary Defeat Attempt to Close Deprice that is paid for board, washing and horse feed, this young man will get better than $45 per month. He should be able to save all of the $250 in cash during the year except what he spends for clothes and this bill should not be very large. In addition he is practically certain of a good, healthy appetite and the building of a robust constitution, besides being in close communion with nature and all the enjoy ments resulting therefrom. The young man who comes to town to work in the store might be fortunate enough to earn $30 a mouth, out of which he must pay for his board, washing and numerous other expenses that a life in town seems to require, and his store life will not be productive of health, while he is placed in the wav of an easy road to dissipation and disgrace. The young man who is wise will stay by the farm and he will come out on top in the end.

The slow-moving Britishers have recently had their eyes opened to another matter in which Americans excel, and that is in the matter of rush building contracts. The British Westinghouse company, in furnishing the supplies for contemplated underground railways, found it necessary to put up one of the greatest electrical plants in the world at Manchester, Contracts were let in May, 1900, and the British workmen began to erect the building. At the rate of progress it was found that the company would not have the building ready in time to supply the materials contracted for by the railway companies and the contractors were urged to complete the building in two and a half years. The demand filled the hearts of the contractors with astonishment and dismay and the Westinghouse people were informed that the building could not be completed inside of five years. Having heard of some of the building feats of Contractor J. O. Stewart of St. Louis the firm sent for him and gave him the job of completing the building. He secured the aid of some of his best helpers and went to work, punching up the subcontractors and the laborers in a manner they had never before experienced, and as a result the building will be completed in about ten months instead of the five years that the English contractors wanted to finish the work. Mr. Stewart's feat has been given wonderful prominence by the British press and he has been given editorial praise by the London Times and other leading English publications. Americans also are proud of their countryman's effort. It is the American way.
